

You've committed your life to creating play for kids.

So have we.

The only difference is that we build ours in some of the harshest places on earth. Research has shown that through play children learn essential cognitive, social and emotional skills. Our on the ground research also showed that providing playgrounds in schools increased attendance, concentration and motivation, and most importantly, the children were happier, with greater resilience to take on the challenges that lay ahead. Play is a central part of education – and we know that education is essential to escape the grip of poverty.

If you're a child, growing up in the developing world is hard. When there are limited resources it's often children who miss out. But with your help, we are here to change that.

We are partnering with the world's best playground designers and builders to help build amazing playgrounds throughout the developing world whilst giving you a chance to tell your clients about the difference you are making.

What do we do?

Using best practice community development principles, Playground Ideas assists communities to design and construct playgrounds to improve children's education, wellbeing and resilience. Since 2007, we have helped communities build over 1500 playgrounds in some of the most challenging, barren environments for children on earth.

Why we need your support?

Playground Ideas helps hundreds of communities around the world each year to build playgrounds, and our work is growing quickly. We are constantly assisting local communities and our international global play alliance members to build better playgrounds. This year, with the launch of our new website, the release of new manuals and resources including our online drag and drop design tool, we are expecting to double the amount of projects that are added to our website.

Your support will help Playground Ideas do the following three things:

Share - We offer all the plans, safety information and tools for any community to build their own low cost playground from local tools and materials

Train - We train teams within large organisations to build multiple playgrounds in the communities they support.

We also train and resource members of our Global Play Alliance to use our designs and work on the ground with groups in their country.

Build - We help NGO's and foundations on the ground to build big, beautiful custom spaces as examples to the surrounding community about the importance of space and time to play. These are fully funded projects.

How will your business benefit by supporting us?

Firstly, you will receive a full page on our website that links your business with our organization. We have specially designed a key part of our site to advertise ethical companies that have decided to get involved and make a difference and we will only ever advertise the very best quality companies offering the best in children's play.

Secondly, we will give you a Playground Ideas pack including a digital badge and wording to help you write your newsletter, blog and create a page on your own site. This will help you to inform your potential clients that for every playground you build, a portion will help us to create playgrounds in some of the poorest places on the planet. This kind of advertising is much more effective because it connects not only with the head, but also the heart.

As we grow, we also want to offer you the opportunity to sponsor particular projects and if you're really keen, the chance to help us design playgrounds and even have a true adventure by coming with us and actually building a project overseas.

And because advertising is an expense, it's tax deductible for you at tax time.

Getting on board will be:

- A genuine way to help, which is directly related to your passion and field of work.
- A deeper way to connect with your customers and show you care.
- A tax deductible option which gets your business name out on the web in a place where over 120,000 unique users come to find great play related ideas.

The communities we work with are smart and resilient and just need the right support and resources to get them started. Your support will help us to help them whilst also attracting potential clients to you who know that you care and are contributing to a better world.

Overleaf is a list of the 3 ways you can support Playground Ideas to build more playgrounds and grow your business reputation at the same time.

Thank you so much for joining with us on this journey, we couldn't do it without you.

Yours sincerely,
